Split of In Person vs Virtual Gatherings by Percent Share (%):

Although events are more likely to mention that they are virtual and less likely to mention that they are in person, there is still a clear pattern of growth in global in-person events. It’s too late to go back to fully virtual events now that the world has had a taste of normalcy again.
Vaccines Are Bolstering Travel Plans

  - International Travel Requirements

- Safety Keywords: +11%
  - Negative COVID-19 Test
  - Exposure to COVID-19
  - Contact Tracing
  - Quarantine
  - World Health Organization Information

We’re seeing higher engagement growth for upcoming air travel than concerns over travel restrictions and safety, so it is likely that consumers will continue to travel if airlines remain in operation.
The Shipping Crisis Is a Major Threat to Retailers

Threats to Holiday Shopping
Percent Share of Consumer Engagement (%):

- Shipping Crisis
  - Shipping Delays
  - Congested Ports and Damaged Railways
  - Truck and Shipping Container Shortages

- Staffing & Closures
  - Worker Shortages and Strikes
  - Shutdowns Due to COVID
  - Labor Costs

- Costs
  - Inflation
  - Raising Prices
  - Fewer Discounts

- Supply Chain Issues
  - Products Out of Stock
  - Supply Chain Disruption
  - Raw Material Shortages

Because consumers are least aware of the global shipping crisis, they won’t be as likely to get their shopping done ahead of time. This will cause retailers to run out of stock of popular products and raise prices on the inventory they do have left close to the holidays. Supply issues are still stemming from problems like the Texas freeze that happened months ago, so the crisis won’t clear up before winter.
Each year, holiday shopping seems to come earlier and earlier. This year, however, shopping early will be more important than ever before. 2021 holiday shopping engagement is currently below past years by 62%. Combined with the delays of the global supply and shipping crises, shopping late this year could be catastrophic.
Supplies needed for popular technology gifts including video game consoles, TVs, and more also affect the toy and auto industries. Worry is already mounting in consumers who like to buy technology at a discount around the holidays. This year, that may not be the case. Likewise, shortages in furniture and appliances continue, and consumers are beginning to worry about the global food supply this winter.

ShareThis Predictions

1. It's too late to halt travel and in-person events now that people are anxious to return to “normal.” 77% of events publicized in August suggested they would be in-person rather than virtual.

2. Consumers are not as aware as they should be of the global shipping crisis, which will lead to delays, out of stock items, and higher prices. Smart shoppers will hit stores earlier this year than ever before.

3. Shortages in technology parts are making consumers especially nervous prior to the holiday season, and these parts also affect cars and toys. There is also increasing concern (+7% WoW) around possible food shortages this winter.

4. Whether consumers spend big or save this holiday season could rely heavily on COVID case numbers in their communities. Currently, engagement with saving and with COVID cases are growing an average of 19% WoW.
